

CALL FOR PAPERS

The Irish Sea in the Viking Age

A conference organized by the Irish Sea in the Middle Ages Research Network (ISMARN)

Wednesday 12th July – Thursday 13th July, 2017

iMuseum, Manx National Heritage,
Douglas, Isle of Man, IM1 3LY

The Irish Sea in the Middle Ages Research Network was established in recognition of the fact that recent and current research in a number of disciplines is transforming our understanding of the region. For no period is this more true than for that often known as 'the Viking Age' (i.e. the late eighth to twelfth centuries CE). The purpose of this conference is to exchange information and to float new ideas about the Irish Sea in the Viking Age from the perspectives of historical, archaeological, literary and cultural studies. Contributions with a specifically Manx focus will be especially welcome.

Please note that the conference will coincide with Celtfest events: <http://www.celtfest.im/>. Participants might be especially interested in the talk on the Celts by Alice Roberts on Tuesday 11th July.

To offer a paper, or simply to register an interest in attending, please email Ben Broadbent: gebb1960@liverpool.ac.uk.
